PRESIDENT DEAN

Weaverville College

The College was first established to meet the needs of the immediate community in which it is located, but later widened its sphere of activity to an extent designed to be commensurate with the demands and opportunities of the entire western section of the State. In 1883 the property was donated to the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and placed under the control of the annual conference within whose bounds it was situated. It is now operated, through a board of trustees, by the Western North Carolina Conference.

History

Dr. J. A. Reagan, who still lives in the town of Weaverville at a ripe age, was the first president of the institution. He has been followed in order by J. M. Campbell, Rev. J. S. Kennedy, D. D., E. M. Goolsby, Rev. D. Atkins, D. D., S. A. Trawick, M. A. Yost, Rev. George F. Kirby, J. M. Robeson, Rev. L. B. Abernethy and Olin S. Dean, the last of whom enters upon his administration with the session of 1909-1910.

By inexpensive board and tuition, the school has put its splendid advantages within reach of poor and rich alike. As a result, many worthy boys and girls from all classes have availed themselves of the opportunities offered here. Thus, during the thirty-six years of its history, Weaverville College has sent forth from its halls graduates that have become eminently prosperous and useful in social, religious and political life.

The institution is one of the junior colleges of Southern Methodism. It does not profess to be what it is not, although its work and curriculum are equal to those of many who make larger pretensions. It is one of those schools, commonly known by the name of secondary, that sustain a vital relation to the church and to society because they take hold of the student in the plastic years and train him in the fundamental facts of true education, assisting him not alone in the mastery of text-book knowledge, but in the formation of habits that determine character.

Its purpose is to create and build up in young men and young women the desire to be what they ought to be—thoughtful, appreciative and successful students of life, with its problems, opportunities and responsibilities.

The town of Weaverville, a prosperous community of about five hundred inhabitants, is situated in the heart of the hills about eight miles from Asheville, and is connected with that city by an electric car line.

It is thus easily accessible to students and visitors, who, arriving in Asheville by way of the Southern railroad, can come out to the College at almost any hour of the day. The town is comparatively new and many of its residences are pretty and attractive. It is absolutely free from those forms of vice that offer temptation to boys in most of our towns and cities. The altitude of the place is about 100 feet higher than that of the city of Asheville.

Bracing air, pure water, superb scenery, and the hospitable character of a cultured citizenship, combine to render Weaverville an almost ideal place for the student's home and work. To stand on the brow of a hill and feast upon the vision of loveliness that breaks upon one as he looks across undulating vales to sun-kissed mountain tops in the distance, or upon the snowy crest of old "Craggy" in winter time, is enough to inspire the dullest soul and enliven the most tardy and unproductive imagination.

The College property is valued at more than $30,000. The grounds comprise about 16 acres, covered with grass and forest trees. There are on the campus at present three buildings, the President's home, the large academic building, and the dormitory. These, with the exception of the first mentioned, are constructed of brick and stone.

Buildings
and Grounds

The academic building is 100 feet wide, with an average depth of 90 feet, and contains the President's office, large and comfortable class rooms, the science laboratory, the library, attractive literary society halls and a splendid auditorium with a seating capacity of nearly one thousand. The dormitory, known as the "Crutchfield Home," is three stories high, exclusive of the basement, accommodates two students in a room, has an excellent dining hall and kitchen, and is well furnished.

The dormitory will be under the immediate supervision and management of the President of the College. A competent matron will give her undivided services to the life of the College home. We will have two things always in view: First, to provide a real home for the students, of whom we hope to make a happy family, seeking by helpful association and noble conduct to attain the true ends of character; second, to furnish this home life at actual cost, if possible.

and

Students who cannot be accommodated in the dormitory will be provided for in the Christian homes of the village, where the charges are but little in advance of those on the College grounds. These students will also be under the control of the College authorities, and will be expected to conduct themselves accordingly.

The freest man is the one who, from the right motive, obeys law best. Upon this principle we base the government of the student body. Since the aim of all true education is to produce self-control and lead to the largest freedom, we shall grant to the students the greatest possible degree of liberty consistent with good order and the successful operation of the school. The institution will receive every boy on the supposition that he is a gentleman, every girl on the supposition that she is a lady, and will endeavor to treat each accordingly. We cordially request all who are not disposed to yield a respectful obedience to the authority of the institution kindly not to enroll as students. We shall try to make our discipline infinitely kind, generously just, impartially firm. It shall be our desire to be of the greatest possible service. To this end we hope to enlist the energies of the young people committed to our care, to appeal to the real manhood and womanhood of the students, to elicit their sympathetic co-operation and thus, together with them, to accomplish a grand and glorious work.

The school is distinctively Christian and endeavors to promote, above all things else, that spirit and those conditions that will lead to the knowledge of that Truth that makes men free.

Religious Life

One of the most valuable features of the institution is the literary society life. There are four of these organizations—the Cliosophic, Delphian, Mnemosynean and Euterpean—all full of activity and friendly competition, affording the members excellent opportunity for the development of the power of debate, literary composition and felicitous extempore speech.

Literary Societies

The library contains several hundred valuable volumes, among which are many excellent books of reference, fiction, etc. The reading room will be supplied with a carefully selected assortment of the best magazines of the day.

The Scientific Course

This course allows the omission of Latin and Greek after the Freshman year, but substitutes other subjects, so as to preserve the dignity of the work.

The Elective Course

This course is designed to provide a convenient arrangement for students, who, for special reasons, are prevented from taking one of the two regular courses, and may be made up of selected studies.

IMPORTANT—Every student must take work enough to keep him busy. We have often heard of “the idle brain” and its consequences. These we shall seek to escape.

The Preparatory Department

This department is designed to be of benefit to those students who are not prepared for the regular collegiate course, or who are deficient in certain elementary studies. The course of study is so arranged as to meet the demands, and is based on the common and high school work of the State, with such changes as are necessary to adapt it to the work of preparing the student for our freshman class.

Miscellaneous Information

Office The President's office is located immediately to the right of the main entrance to the "Old Building." It is here that the business of the College will be transacted.

The faculty of the College is fully competent for the work marked out. Great care is being used in the selection of the teachers, and we believe that every officer and teacher will be in close sympathy with the students, giving cheerful assistance in every way possible.

Faculty

Free Tuition Free tuition in the literary department will be given to ministers of all evangelical denominations coming with the proper indorsement. Children of all ministers in pastoral work will be given liberal consideration.

Discount A liberal discount will be granted where more than one student enters from the same family and obligations are satisfactorily met.

Especial care is given to the provision made for the young women students. Those who do not board on the campus will be placed in the delightful Christian homes of the village. It is a noteworthy fact that the young men of the student body have been accustomed to conduct themselves with unusual respect and courtesy toward the young women, thus insuring a pure and elevating atmosphere of college life.

Our Girls

Go to Asheville. You will find at Pack Square, the central meeting point of all the electric railway lines, the car that will take you direct to Weaverville. The end of the car line is only a few hundred yards from the College. Should you arrive at Asheville during the night, go to the Windsor or the Swannanoa, or the Y. W. C. A. headquarters and remain until next day. All who properly notify the President of the College of their coming will be met in Asheville by one of the Faculty.

From Freshman to Dean

The three essentials in life are Character, Education, and Appearance.

We are addressing our remarks to the young man who respects his appearance and realizes that an error in clothes, like an error in conduct, reflects directly upon the individual.

There is an assurance of always being correct in wearing the clothes we sell, and there is real economy in wearing them, too. You will appreciate how much after you have given them a trial.

It's a fine thing to be able to meet the eye of the man you sell clothes to and know that you are selling him satisfaction. That's the feeling we hold toward each and every one of our customers.

We appreciate your coming too much to speed your departure, or to rush you to a decision. Examine, compare, question, change your mind as much as you like, and remember that we stand back of every garment we sell through its whole life.

You are welcome to our store and always feel free to make it your meeting place when in the city.

Sincerely yours,

R. B. Zager
